COLD WEATHER ADVICE

To all is to beware of coughs and colds on the chest; as neglected they readily lead to pneumonia, consumption or other pulmonary troubles. Just as soon as the cough appears treat it with Ballard's Horehound Syrup the standard cure of America. Use as directed—perfectly harmless. A cure and preventive for all diseases of the lungs. Price 25c, 50c, and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by Geo. P. Wilder, druggist.

This is the season of the year when the enemies of poultry get in their work, such as rats, skunks, weasels and cats. See that your chickens are shut up tightly each night or you will be minus some of them one of these fine mornings.

The cool nights remind us that cold weather is not far distant, and the poultry houses should be overhauled and attended to. The roof should be tight so that no rain or snow can fall through and all cracks should be battened up so that no cold drafts of air may strike the fowls and cause them to catch cold and crop.

A general cleaning and whitewashing of the poultry house is now in order, so that the fowls may commence the winter free from lice and mites. It is time that the hens were over their molt and ready for fall and winter laying, but they cannot lay eggs if pestered night and day by vermin.

A good many farmers are just now debating as to whether they will feed cattle this winter. Owing to the drought in other states the Kansas crop is sure to be in demand and the price high. This fact, together with the uncertain prices to be realized on the cattle market, has served to make men hesitate. It has been shown repeatedly, however, that good money is to be made in feeding cattle at present prices for both stock and corn where the feeder has an ample supply of corn and alfalfa. In spite of the objections mentioned above, the demand for beef is constantly increasing and feeding the grain and alfalfa will pay.
